QSO 600 Module Four Graphic Organizer Guidelines and Rubric

Overview: This activity will allow you to create a graphic organizer, which is an important skill in the field of operations management.

Prompt: Create a graphic organizer that presents different types of production systems and their uses and purposes when considering risks. Your graphic organizer should be related to the type of organization selected for your final project (for example, service or manufacturing). Include the risks involved for internal and external stakeholders within the organization that you selected.

The following critical elements must be addressed:

  I.   Present types of production systems related to the organization selected for the final project.
 II.   Describe risks involved for internal stakeholders within the organization selected for the final project.
III.   Describe risks involved for external stakeholders within the organization selected for the final project.

Guidelines for Submission: Your 1-page graphic organizer should adhere to the following formatting requirements: Use a free online graphic organizer tool, such as Creately, Popplet Lite, or Bubbl.us, to create this assignment, and submit your graphic organizer as a PDF, JPG, PPT, or DOC file.
